HE DANCED AT HER WEDDING, Sector Globe.

danced at her wedding last night
And none could have guessed my smotion, as I saw her a bride, her on whom I had lavished a lifetime's devotion, danced at her wedding. Why not?
Having lived through the scone at the aliar,
When the knot was tied fast for all time,
Do you think that my courage would falter?

I danced with as lightsome a step,
With a face as uncovered as the next one;
He must be a fattous fool
Who in crisis like this could expect one,
Though a fumili was raging within,
To be ray to onlookers his passion.
I don't wear my heart on my sleave;
That sort of thing isn't my fashion.

Maryland in 1880 gave 15.191 Democratic majority; in 1884, 11,233, and in 1883, after four years of a Democratic federal administration, only 6,182.

Virginia cast in 1880, 44,568 Democratic majority; in 1884, 6,141, and in 1888 this dwindled down to 1,541.

North Carolins went Democratic in 1884 by 17,884 majority, but in 1888, after four years of Democratic administration, the Democratic majority fell to 13,118.

West Virginia gave the Democrats a

Kentucky in 1880 cast a Democratic majority of 42,752; in 1884 this fell to 34,770 and in 1888 to 28,666, in spite of the efforts of Mesars. Carlisle, Breckin-ridge and Waterson.
Missouri had in 1880 a Democratic majority of 55,042; in 1884 this fell to 33,059 and rose alightly in 1888 to 35,701.
Tennessee was Democratic in 1880 by 20,514; in 1884 by only 9,180, which in 1888 rose to 19,000.

The searcheso-called "border States." The "solid South" consists of sixteen States, casting 153 electoral votes. Of these Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia gre now plainly uncertain States. Governor Lee gays the Democrats carried Virginia, but with so small a margin as 1,541 majority. He may see it go the other way four years hence. West Virginia is probably to be counted in the Republican column in 1802. Delaware has already a Republican United States Senator, and sy to Maryland a change of a little over three thousand votes will detach her from the "solid South" also. If President Harrison rules wisely and in a conservative spirit the 153 electoral votes of the "solid South may easily be lessened in 1802 by 29, leaving only 124 out of a total for the whole country of .413, sounting in the electoral votes of the new States.

The politicians who, by their appeals to the Southern people, maintain the "Solid South" have heretofore counted on carrying Presidential elections with the help of New York and Indiana—both on carrying Presidential elections with the help of New York and Indiana—both the help of New York and Indiana—both lost last November and both uncertain States—or with the help of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey—all, except New Jersey, doubtful States, The "Solid South," when it could cast 153 Democratic electoral votes, was a tempting object to Northern Democrate. Will it be as much so when it casts but 1247 We assure Southern readers of the Herald that this is a question seriously asked in Northern Democratic airples, Mr. Grady, of Georgia, spoke what every Democratic in the North, in considering the last election, has felt to be absolutely true when he said last year, "A Solid South invites a Solid North." But Mr. Grady addressed just as true and im-South invites a Solid North." But Mr. Grady addressed just as true and important a warning to Southern men:—"To remain solid," said he, "is therefore to incur the changes of being placed in perpetual minority and practically shut out from participation in the Government."

ient,"
In 1884 Mr. Cleyeland carried four orthern States—New York, Connectiut, New Jersey and Indiana, with sixty. cut, New Jersey and Indiana, with sixtysix electoral votes. The South remained "solid" during the four years of his reign, contrary, we may tell Southern men, to very general and reasonable expectation in the North. In 1888, with all the great advantage to the party of a Democratic federal administration in power, he was able to earry but two Northern States—
New Jersey, with nine electoral votes, and Connecticut with six. The House of Representatives elected in 1882 had seventy-one Democratic majority; that chosen in 1884 had only forty-one; in seventy-one Democratic majority; that choose in 1884 had only forty-one; in that of 1886 the Democratic majority dwindled to eleven, and in the coming Congress the Democrats are in the minority. Meanwhile in all these years the South had remained "solid." The Democratic losses of States and of Congressional seats have been in the North, for the "solid. South" has test no State and only six Democratic seats in all that time.

time.
That the Southern voters are not all of one mind upon what Mr. Lamar used to call "real questions," numerous Southern correspondents of the Herald have call "real questions," numerous Sonthern correspondents of the Herald have shown, and everybody knows. Their misfortune is that they have placed themselves in the hands of a set of politicians, who for their selfash purposes inflame the fears and prejudices of the yoters on what shey call the "race questions," and thus push saide the consideration of other questions on which the rest of the country divides. They thus inflict upon the Southern people a great in jury by putting them out of harmony and touch with the country at large. But Northern Democrate see that the "solid South" constantly stronger projudice among Northern voters, and see, besides, that though it remains solid it grows weaker by the defection of border States. They see that it bars the way to future Democrate success and to the success of Democratic policies.

Southern Democrate count in the control of the coming Chaitancogs convention—to incide the Southern voters to divide on "real questions," such as the tariff, subsidies and internal improvements. When this comes about it is certain that the Republicans will have a large Southern representation in Congress, But that will not hurt the South. On the order of their friends.

in the trade. Great haste in loading by them was followed by a hot race to reach New York first.

The first cargo brought the best price and large profits. The successful Captain was always rewarded, so every known aid to navigation was adopted. The young captain of one of Mr. Astor's clippers bought, on one of his trips, a new chronometer, and with its aid made a quick passage, and arrived first. He put the price of it into the expense account of the trip, but Mr. Astor threw it out, insisting that such an item of expense for new fangled notions could not be allowed.

The Captain thereupon resigned and took service with a rival line.

The next year he reached port long in advance of any competitor, to the great delight and profit of his employers, and the chagrin of Mr. Astor.

Not long after they chanced to meet, and Mr. Astor inquired:

"By the way, Captain, how much did that othrommeter coat you?"

"Six hundred dollars," then, with a quizzical glance, he asked:

"And how much has it cost you, Mr. Astor?"

"Sixty thousand dollars."
